

DDM STUDENT FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM: 2021- 2022

Excellence in Undergraduate Student Work

The DDM Fellowship Program recognizes the unique and critical voices of design and dynamic media undergraduate students evidenced through their studio-based work within curriculum. The program invites submissions of studio projects that respond to and contend with the plural and contemporary social, political and ecological conditions of the world. The fellowships are opportunities for DDM students to highlight how their course-based work engages with Emily Carr's EDI priorities and Action Plan, and commitments to ecological sustainability.

APPLICANT(S) INFORMATION

Student applicant(s):	Student email(s):
Major	Faculty supervisor/mentor:

PROJECT INFORMATION

Project Title
Provide a summary of your project (50-100 words) and a link to one image
Project Description including methodology, current or anticipated outcomes and a brief timeline

We especially welcome completed as well as in-progress student work that addresses Equity, Diversity, Inclusion, Sustainability and Climate Justice, Sustainability and Ethical Engagements with Technology. In a few sentences clarifying how your project responds to these criteria.

Student Bio

FACULTY ENDORSEMENT

Studio Course Mnemonic	Term
Faculty Mentor Name	Faculty Signature

DDM Student Fellows will receive a $500 award, and are expected to commit to prepare and participate in the mobilization of their projects through a public presentation to take place in the Spring semester, as well as contribute documentation for online archiving. Read more about the program here.

APPLICATION CONFIRMATION

I understand that the above information may be used to assist in promoting this project or event through our Faculty and/or for annual reporting purposes.

Signature:	Date
-------------------	-------------

Please return this completed form to Reyhan Yazdani at ryazdani@ecuad.ca before Feb 28, 2022.